going to look at a 275 baler tomorrow and was wondering if they are a decent unit, owner says he put up around 1000 bales a year, are there any areas besides the knotter that i should be critical of?, also about what years were these built and are parts still available?, looking to put up 4-5000 bales this year and don't want to torcher myself with my mf-3 anymore. thanks in advance steve.

IMHO the 276 was one of New Holland's best balers. If they are asking any kind of above scrap sale price, have them run some hay through it and see if it will make a bale/tie a knot. Look for welded needles as an indicator that something happened at some point in the baler's life. That old of a baler should roll,over by hand.
