CARE's Pathways program is using several innovative approaches to achieve our results. A couple of our innovations at work are: Focusing on Gender Equality: We know that the face of hunger is largely female, and promoting equality helps reduce food insecurity. We use our women's empowerment framework to guide our interventions to make sure we are building equality by looking at agency, structures, and relations.

Pathways - CARE

Care pathways are often used to adequately implement and coordinate the care for specific groups of patients and are based on guidelines, good practices and patient expectations.

How care pathways contribute to improving oncological care

Care coordination is the delivery of effective medical, psychological, and/or social care through the organization of primary and secondary care providers. With their knowledge of systems of care, palliative/hospice social workers serve as important points of contact between different care providers, patients, and the treatment team.
